

International Internship at Institut Néel in Grenoble

I stayed at Institut Néel in Grenoble (France), as an internship student. We challenged to design and construct a new Nano-DSC system for extremely small sample by using a microfabrication technique. We finally succeeded to construct and evaluate the new systems. The project has been running and I'm waiting for the result of heat capacity measurement. The days in France was interesting and exciting for me, so I'd like to go back again!
